Subject: SJRWP Wikis to Replace LeapFile Portal

---

All-

Integral's LeapFile portals will be shutting down later this month. We have replaced each portal with a wiki page of the same name. All of the San Jacinto River Waste Pits LeapFile portals, documents, and users have been copied to the new wikis. All users will have the same viewing rights as they did previously. Please see below my signature for a comparison of the old system and new system.

Instructions providing the wiki link, your initial login credentials, and how to change your passwords are attached. Upon first login, your default password will be "Integral". It is important that you change your password when you first login.

Erika Corey is the Integral person who will be available to address your questions. She is cc'd on this email, and her phone numbers are included at the end of this email.

We'd be happy to hold a webinar meeting or two to show you how this works if you'd like, but please follow the attached instructions first – it's easy, and I doubt you'll need further assistance.

The LeapFile portal will no longer be available after January 28.

P.S. Gary, we are working on an email to all holders of access to one or more portal folders, but hit a snag. I expect we'll send that later today. Sorry for the delay, please feel free to forward this.

Thank you,

Jennifer

Welcome to Integral's Wiki Site

The only difference between the LeapFile and wiki sites is the absence of folders on the wiki pages. Our wiki does not support folder structures, so links of the same name have been created in lieu of them. See below for details.

9549000

LeapFile was based on a folder structure

Wikis are based on a link structure. Clicking on a link will mirror the action of opening a folder on LeapFile.

Please feel free to email me any questions you may have.

Thanks!
